Strike Notice Today
To Make It 65,000

By The Associated Press
At least 33,000 workers in nine states remained on strike today, and in New York a CIO union served a strike notice involving another 32,000 employees at eight Bethlehem Steel Co. shipyards.

Also in New York, the United Mine Workers (UMW) and management representatives opened negotiations for a new contract for some 75,000 hard coal miners. The miners are expected to ask for a pay boost and an increase in the 30-cents-a-ton payment by the mine owners into the union welfare fund. The current contract expires Sept. 30.

Steelers Study Proposal
At Canton, O., 19,000 CIO United Steelworkers studied a proposed new contract which union leaders predict will end a 30-day strike at the Timken Roller Bearing Co. Company and union leaders agreed on the pact Monday night. Rank and file union members will vote Wednesday to accept or reject the proposed contract.

The agreement includes provisions and a modified union shop, a wage boost averaging 10 per cent and longer vacation with pay.

Strip Mill Closed
At Cleveland, some 2,000 Republic Steel Corp. workers were off the job at the firm's strip mill. Both the management and CIO United Steel Workers officials termed the walkout wildcat strike.

About 18,000 B. F. Goodrich Co. workers who struck nine plants at midnight Sunday are still off the job. The walkout occurred after 10 weeks of wage and contract talks.

At Lawrenceville, Ind., about 1,000 distillery workers stayed away from their jobs at the Joseph E. Seagram & Sons plant for the fourth day in a dispute over mechanization of the plant.

7-Day Strike Notice
In New York, the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Ship Building Workers served a seven-day strike notice on Bethlehem Steel Co. The union represents workers at Bethlehem shipyards in New York, Boston, Baltimore and Hoboken, N. J.

A union spokesman said the notice was served last night after a "dead end" had been reached after eight months of bargaining on a new contract.

Bodies of Couple
Married Saturday
Found in Lake

ROCKAWAY BEACH, Mo., (AP)—The bodies of a young Commerce, Mo., couple, married only Saturday, were found floating in Lake Taneycomo near here this morning. Taney County Coroner Harry Forsyth said both died from drowning.

The victims were James J. Seyer, 26, and his wife, Betty, 19.

Forsyth said the Seyers apparently went swimming about midnight. The bodies were still together when found and Forsyth said he believed the wife was in trouble first and struggled with her husband when he went to her assistance. Forsyth said Mrs. Seyer still held a death grip on her husband when the bodies were recovered.

There will be no inquest. The coroner said he contacted a relative of Mrs. Seyer, who informed him the couple were married last Saturday and came to Rockaway Beach for their honeymoon.

The bodies are at the Whelchel Funeral Home at Branson.

Soviets Building New Jet Base In East Zone

BERLIN (AP)—The Russians were reported today building a new jet air base in the East zone within six minutes' striking distance of post 100 miles behind the iron curtain.

The report was front-paged in the Neue Zeitung, German-language daily sponsored here by the U. S. high commission.

Mrs. Virgil Moore
Always First Blood
Donor to Register

Every time that the blood bank, sponsored by the Pettis County Red Cross, is announced, the women in charge of registration know exactly who is going to be the first to register. Mrs. Virgil Moore never fails—she wants to give each time and she wants to be the first one to sign up.

This time, sure enough, the person to get her name on the first line as a donor at the blood bank Aug. 27-28 is Mrs. Virgil Moore.

Two others who can always be depended upon to register are the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Hollingsworth and they, too, never wait—they may not be second or third after Mrs. Moore, but they are always at the top of the list.

Giving blood for those boys in Korea seems a mighty little thing to do to them and they are always glad when the Red Cross gives them that opportunity to do their bit.

McCarthy Loses
Postponement Plea
In Slander Suit
Against Sen. Benton

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Counsel for Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) lost a fight today for postponement of pre-trial testimony from Paul G. Hoffman in McCarthy's two million dollar libel-slander suit against Sen. Benton (D-Conn.).

U. S. District Judge Burnita S. Matthews overruled a motion for a delay.

Edward B. Williams, counsel for McCarthy, asked the delay on grounds that McCarthy has been ill and unable to confer with his attorneys.

Can Talk Politics

Theodore Kiendl, representing Benton, argued that newspaper articles indicate McCarthy held a news conference recently on political matters. He contended that if McCarthy is well enough to talk politics he is well enough to confer with Williams.

The fight stems from McCarthy's big damage suit. He contends that Benton libeled and slandered him with unfounded charges of fraud, perjury and calculated deceit of the American people.

Mystery In Hoffman

Theodore Kiendl of New York and Gerhard Van Arkel of Washington, counsel for Benton, have made mystery of their reasons for calling Hoffman, a top adviser to the Eisenhower - for - President forces.

Edward B. Williams of Washington, McCarthy's lawyer, said he would use that fact in his arguments to the court. He has asked the court to forbid the examination of Hoffman until the ailing McCarthy can take a hand in cross-examining the witness or at least consult with his counsel.

Hoffman headed the Economic Recovery Administration (ECA) through which the Marshall Plan to combat communism in Europe was initiated, but Benton's lawyers have refused to tell in advance the nature of questions to be asked of him.

James Durely
Elected County
Demo Chairman

The Pettis County Democratic Central Committee Tuesday elected James E. Durely as the new county chairman at a meeting held in the County Court room of the Courthouse. He succeeds P. Emmett Sullivan.

Mrs. Walter Cramer, whose husband is Sedalia's city chairman, was elected as vice-chairman of the committee; Ike Warren, treasurer; D. Kelly Scruton, re-elected secretary.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Sullivan, who presided during the election of the officers.

Chairman Durely announced he would request the committeemen and women who tied for election in the primary to contact each other and endeavor to decide among themselves who shall take the office.

The committee gave a vote of thanks to outgoing Chairman Sullivan following his short talk in which he thanked the committee for their help during the past several years.

On and Around the Fairgrounds with the Fairgoers

Deaf Youths Enjoy Fair

A group of young people seemingly having more fun than anybody else Sunday afternoon on the fairgrounds were all deaf.

There were three boys and three or four girls and they were all talking at once—talking on their fingers. Gestures went along with the sign language and there was lots of laughter. One pretty, red-haired girl at one time got a serious expression on her face and was excitedly telling something. Whether she wasn't getting her point over or wasn't getting the attention she wanted at the moment, an onlooker couldn't tell, but she looked a bit distressed. She punched one of the boys on the shoulder and then "talked" away as hard as she could.

One of the boys must have been telling something funny that happened because he laughed, made gestures, and talked while the rest of the group stood laughing at him.

And on they went, melting into the carnival crowd, and on to other parts of the Fair, enjoying the whole thing to the fullest.

Gift for Mrs. Wild

Chester A. Brown, executive-manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, went over to the home of Mrs. Mary Wild, Sunday, to give her a gift for being the oldest woman who had fancy work entered in the home economics department at the fair.

The 93 year old woman was delighted.

"I want to give him a chicken," she told her daughter — and Mr. Brown, who was on his way to the fair, protested.

"No, no," he said, wondering what in the world he would do with the chicken.

The lady insisted — and she handed him a small crocheted chicken she had made herself — she likes to give people who visit her a chicken — and the C. of C. executive-manager was no exception — especially after he had been so nice to her to bring her gift from the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce. He left with the chicken — and he was glad it was not the kind with feathers.

Clown's Nose Hurts
Whitley Woodson, the clown who has been with the Missouri State Fair for several years, had an injury that took him to fair grounds hospital for treatment Monday. Someone pulled off his gold, putty nose and took some of the 'hide' with it. The guy who did it evidently thought HE was the clown. Twarn't funny, fella.

Staple Stitching
Things are going at a fast pace in the Administration Building at the Missouri State Fair. One of the women snagged the hem in her skirt, and didn't take time to sew it. Without any cogitation she swept up a stapler and stapled it in. Look all right and so far, is staying up.

10,420 Visit Gardens
Sunday 10,420 people visited the Missouri Highway Gardens at the Missouri State Fair. Seventy-five hundred saw the motion picture being shown, "The Road Ahead", and took with them maps of Missouri.

Making Presidential Poll
The Staley Feed Company exhibit at the State Fair has taken a political turn once again. Four years ago the company held a political poll on the presidential race. They alone of all the polls in the country were correct. The poll predicted that Harry Truman would be elected in the general election as President of the United States.

This year the Staley people have once again set up a polling booth where State Fair visitors may cast their ballots for General Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson. On Saturday the Republicans led the poll with 65 per cent of the votes and the Democrats trailed with 35 per cent. A cumulative poll will be taken on Sunday. (Please turn to Page 6, Column 5)

Toll in England
LYNNMOUTH, England (AP)—Police warned today that the toll from Saturday's devastating flood on England's Southwest Coast may go as high as 90 dead.

The latest official casualty figures for the flash torrent stood at 13 known dead, with 28 missing and presumed dead. Seven of the bodies so far recovered have been identified.

But unofficially the police said they still had no word on at least 50 more holidayers who were believed to have been in the resort area on Friday night when sudden downpours sent the quiet little Llyn river raging over this picturesque little Devon honeymoon resort.

Special Train
Missouri legislators and St. Louisians arrived on the Missouri State Fair grounds today to participate in Legislators' and St. Louis Day. More than 70 Missouri lawmakers and approximately 450 St. Louisians are there, the St. Louis group arriving by special train shortly after noon.

McLeod, general chairman of the committee in charge of the State Fair Trip; Girard C. Varnum, associate chairman; Ross C. Shannon, chairman of the "Steam Roller" committee; Charles R. Frederick, secretary of the C. of C. Miss Helen Severs, hostess.

From 4 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. the delegation, in part, attended a party at the Sedalia Country Club which was sponsored by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Mr. and Mrs. Justin Faherty were the hosts. Mr. Faherty is assistant to the publisher of the newspaper.

Monday's attendance fell short of the corresponding day of '51 by 985, or a total of 31,365 against 32,350. The total attendance for the three days is 142,129 against 1951's 138,553.

The legislators, 62 from the House and six Senators, are being shown about the exhibits and grounds by Dan Doty, representative from Pettis County. The 19th senatorial district's new senatorial nominee, George Spencer of Columbia, was cordially greeted by House members with whom he served.

Meet St. Louis Train
The St. Louis aggregation, headed by civic leaders of that city, arrived at the railroad gates where they were greeted by Robert T. Thornburg, commissioner of agriculture, and Secretary Singleton. The Pershing High School band of University City, its drum and bugle corps, along with the Bolivar High School band and its all-girl drum and bugle corps, met the delegation and led the St. Louis parade.

The delegation marched from the railroad gates through the grounds and to the grandstand where the group disbanded. Some attended the Grand Circuit races while many others toured the hundreds of exhibits and walked through the livestock barns.

Two Sets of Races
Today's program called for a "double feature" of the Grand Circuit with Monday's program, which was rained out, being started at 1 p. m. and being followed by the regular Tuesday program.

At the noon hour today the following Missouri high school bands played a concert on the grounds, and this afternoon they played during the races, and this evening will give a concert on the lawn of the Administration Building: Memphis, the Pershing High School band of University City, Centralia, Warren County High School band of University City, Bolivar High School band and the Bolivar all-girl drum and bugle corps.

Also included in the thrill show was the famous stunt clown, "McNasty", who in real life is Jimmy Anderson.

Planes 'Dust' Forest
MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — In Montana they've got "forest-dusters" that spray DDT on thousands of acres of mountain forest each year in an aerial blitz of the spruce budworm.
If left alone, the hungry worms turn a green forest into a graveyard of rust-colored trees. So the U. S. Forest Service hired the Johnson Flying Service for the job of dusting 140,000 acres of forest near Dayton, Wash.
Johnson used a C-47 cargo plane and two old Ford trimotors. The work must be done in the summer between dawn and 9 a.m. because at temperatures above 68 degrees the spray vaporizes and floats up into the air. And the wind must be less than seven miles an hour.
The planes skip over mountain ridges with only a few feet to spare, trailing white plumes of spray. They cover 10,000 acres in one morning.

Pigs, Bikes and Broom-Making Equipment Bought By Austrian Refugees With American Loans

MAKING HAY on their Austrian farm are the Benzigers—this is Resi, 13—whose lot was vastly improved with a loan from the American Friends Service Committee.

By NEA Foreign Service
VIENNA — Everything from a few pigs to broom-making materials is being bought by Austrian refugees with money from a new loan service set up by the American Friends Service Committee. Whatever they buy, it means the difference between the cheerless life of a DP camp and self-support.
Broom-maker Ferdinand Dienar, a 58-year-old refugee from Yugoslavia, expresses the sentiments of his fellow-borrowers. The small loan he obtained made it possible for his 90-broom-a-day plant to operate at a profit.
"I feel that your granting of credit," Dienar told the Quaker representative, "has not only helped me materially, but, much more, has given my spirits a lift. It will remain for me a cherished reminder of the day on which, for the first time after seven years as a refugee, I was again judged to be personally worthy of credit."

It's this double-barrelled value that makes the Quaker loans such a good investment, the committee feels. There are some 400,000 refugees in Austria, all struggling to make ends meet and reestablish their self-respect. They've come from Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, and most are of German ethnic origin, called Volksdeutsche. The loans averaging about 13,000 schillings (roughly $500) are interest-free for the first two years. They are relatively easy to obtain, without the usual red tape and stringent security provisions. The committee places more faith in human endeavor and will than in security, although they are made on a strict economic basis.
Herman and Barbara Roth, a young refugee couple from Romania, are typical borrowers. With their baby daughter, Hannelore, 2, they rent a small vegetable farm in Upper Austria, about 75 miles from Salzburg. It was a struggle, without funds, to operate the run-down acreage with run-down equipment.
An 8,000-schilling loan enabled Herman Roth to repair the farm truck and make a few vital improvements, such as building the frames to cover the lettuce beds. Now he can drive his produce to market. Now his income is adequate. Now his family has that priceless feeling of self-respect.

Better still, Roth can now employ four refugees as hired hands on the farm. And his truck helps a neighbor refugee haul his produce to market, too. So the loan to one family has helped six.
Another refugee is Nikolaus Bernath, from Romania. The Russians had made him a forced laborer in the mines during the war, and he lost two fingers in an accident. His family is still in Romania, so Bernath lives in a small room near the land he farms.
A loan enabled him to buy two

Pettis County Again Wins With Booth

In what was termed by judges as the best prepared and exhibited agriculture show of the Missouri State Fair in its 50 year history, the Pettis County Booth was given first place in competition with six other counties.

The booths were merited on the basis of representation of products in production by the county to what the county produces.

The tangy odor of grapes came from the Pettis County Booth, blending with the smell and sight of other products of the county. A chart explained that the 2381 farms of the county cover an acreage of 94.4 per cent of the land. There are 39 home extension clubs; 643 boys and girls enrolled in the 42 4-H clubs and 36 churches in Pettis County. Balanced farming coverage is shown on a map.

Other counties in the order of places in judging were: Benton, Moniteau, Carroll, Audrain, Ralls and Jackson.

Robert Roselle entomologist for the Department of Agriculture, is in charge of the Agricultural building and judges from the College of Agriculture at the University of Missouri were: L. E. Cavanah, C. L. Koehler and H. F. Strothmann.

One hundred fourteen counties are in Missouri. There should be a better representation of booths, the judges remarked.

The other counties had, in addition to agricultural exhibits—Benton—A sign formed with corn marked the Benton County Booth. The total pasture acreage in the county are 274,042 and on that acreage is grown practically every product possible in this region. They were shown along with samples of ore.

Moniteau County exhibited everything ranging through peanuts, pumpkins and posies. Carroll County had a tin-rimmed map filled with soil and planted with either actual plants or representations of products which have the following acreage: wheat, 50,033; corn, 28,000; rye, 453; barley, 105; hay, 43,000; soybeans, 17,400; pasture, 142,004; timber, 21,717 and oats, 33,300. Concrete highways and match-stick fences laced the map.

Among the exhibits in the Audrain County booth roamed stuffed possums, skunks, and foxes. A wooden wagon, pulled by wooden oxen, was loaded with ears of corn.
A picture of the Ralls County Courthouse was behind the wooden map, lighted to represent the pigs, the start of what he hopes will be a large boost to his income. Part of the money went for a bicycle, because Bernath works part-time as a plasterer in a village three miles away and the walk was long and tiring.

The loan scheme was begun about a year ago by Spencer Cox, an American Quaker worker.

"We believe," says Cox, "we have really helped the people we have made loans to. We would not say that all of them would have emigrated, or committed suicide, or stayed in barracks camps if we hadn't come along, but we have certainly been a turning point in many a family existence."

location of registered beef, swine, dairy and sheep producers, and painted to show where are the rivers, railroads and highways. The map was prepared by the Ralls County 4-H Club.

Statistics were placed along with appropriate figures that comprise the million dollar industries of Jackson County on plaques in the form of the county. The county has 128,000 acres in pasture.

Mrs. Frank Monroe Hat Attended All 50 Missouri Fairs

Mrs. Frank Monroe, 232 South Kentucky, has a million scenes flash through her mind when she remembers the Missouri State Fair. Her mind has had ample opportunity to record these pictures, because she has attended each of the 50 fairs in Sedalia. For 30 of those years she came to the fair each day and still gets to the grounds at least three times during the week.
Her husband, in real estate in Sedalia, published the program for the fair for about 20 years. He was then in charge of the machinery exhibits for 11 years.

The Monroe's son, Capt. Frank Monroe Jr., used to sell programs for the fair for his father when he was a little boy. He is still dealing with many people because he is commander of the U. S. Naval Training Center at San Diego, Calif., in charge of 35,000 trainees.
Before the death of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Galbreath, (he was a M-K-T official), Mr. and Mrs. Monroe used to attend the races with them. Mrs. Monroe used to look forward to the foolish wagers Mr. Galbreath would propose, such as betting $1 to a dime that certain horse would fall down before the race. His wife and Mrs. Monroe collected a nice sum of money from him through the years.

Mrs. Monroe always notes the improvements made in the fair's grounds and activities and has enjoyed seeing its growth.

Only Ten 4-H Girls Exhibit Stock at Fair

There are only 10 girls exhibiting livestock for 4-H clubs, but they take their job seriously and work just as hard as any boy in the same field.

This morning Mary Margaret Johanning was up experimenting with curling the hair of her Angus steer, which was shown this afternoon.

She says that some think it is unusual for a girl to do such work, yet she had her heart set on it since a child. Her brothers both had done the same thing and she finally talked her father into letting her participate also.

Mary Margaret is up early every morning to feed her steer and takes care of it completely. She must do this with no outside assistance if her animal is to qualify as a certified entry in competition. She is from the Steinmetz 4-H club, Glasgow.

Jeanette Bradley, New Hope 4-H Club likes her job too. She has spent a lot of time getting her entry ready. One of the primary things is to train the animal to stand just right when shown. She says all the "dirty" work connected with her project becomes a part of it and is just as enjoyable as the rest of it.

As girl exhibitors, they have found that they are not discriminated against and are happy doing something which is a main activity and full-time occupation.

Original Flower Decorations Take Little Time, Effort

By MATILDA ROGERS
Written for NEA Service
NEW YORK (NEA) — Once you become a flower arranger you will find it as much fun to create charming designs with weeds as you do with garden or florist flowers.

A short stroll in most country places will lead to an open field where weeds grow profusely. And if the field doesn't produce a spike and a round flower, the combination ordinarily necessary for a good design, don't worry about it. Do the next best thing: combine two colors.

In this arrangement, the white of the Queen Anne's lace and the dark red of the Bee Balm go very well together. It takes just a few minutes to cut the stems varying lengths and to place the flowers on a needlepoint holder. For best results, the holder should be anchored to your dish with three small gobs of oily clay.

Incidentally, have you ever noticed the exquisite pattern of the Queen Anne's lace? How many cultivate flowers can boast of an equally beautiful design as this weed?

The Bee Balm, in some localities, is called Oswego Tea. Sometimes the flowers are purple; sometimes a rich crimson. It has a delightful fragrance.

Flower arrangement is, after all, the art of creating a still-life picture with live plant material. Part of the fun in doing it with weeds is the fact that it doesn't cost anything and also that when the flowers are faded and have to be discarded, it is no problem at all to replace them.

All you need do is go for a walk and take your scissors along. That is one of the charms of living, visiting or vacationing in the country.

I have spent several summers at children's camps, teaching youngsters the art of flower arranging. It was gratifying to see the joy campers found in their exciting discovery that they could create designs with practically anything and everything they could cut.

While they soon learned to look for things with pattern and form, they also found that some weeds, like buttercups and butter-and-eggs and similar fragile-stemmed flowers were most pleasing to the eye, since they did not last long enough to be made into arrangements.

They also learned not to tear weeds, but to cut them when they went "flower picking." They agreed that many weeds were just about the prettiest flowers they had seen. Each tree-identification walk and each excursion into the fields led them to new beauty.

The things they did cut for flower arrangement included white daisies, black-eyed susans, goldenrod, Queen Anne's lace, Bee Balm, wild phlox, false dragon-head, turkhead and even sunac. To cut sunac, you'll need pruning scissors.

Just as their dining rooms and social halls took on a feeling of warmth and the campers enjoyed having "flowers" around all the time, so you can brighten your home with field weeds.

arrangement make the mistake of thinking that unless they can use something elaborate, there's no point in bothering. This, of course is a mistake.

Weeds make practice truly inexpensive. Besides, any simple arrangement you do yourself gives much more satisfaction than the most intricate prize-winner you see.

In the country, where life is more social, it might prove relaxing and fun, when friends drop in, to have a flower arrangement party instead of the usual bridge game. If you are fortunate enough to have an open field of flowers near you, it makes entertaining simple and takes no preliminary planning.

Redecorated Education Bldg. Has Splendid School Display

The management of the Missouri State Fair and the State Department of Education have instituted a new policy concerning the exhibits in the educational department this year. The building was redecorated and new booths provided by the fair management.

Forrest E. Wolverton is supervising exhibits of the state educational institutions.

The Missouri School for the Deaf is featuring in its exhibit a model of the school made by 1951-1952 students, Richard Webb, Jack Herman and Darrell Long, all of Kansas City. It shows the grounds in detail, even to the water tower. Around the walls of the booth are photographs depicting normal life at the school—classes, play, and dances. Sports trophies the school has won and articles made by the students are shown.

The Missouri Medical Association has a cartoon of a man in the various stages of drink.

Nurses of the state have pamphlets for the public concerning their profession and nurses are there to answer questions.

The State Library of Jefferson City is showing slides and the types of people who use the library facilities. A map shows the location of all libraries in the state.

Work by students at Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, is shown. It encompasses projects in art, all phases, wood and metal, textile and leather, posters, photography and commercial art.

Fifty-seven people in Pettis County died of cancer in the last year. This is shown on a map by the Cancer Society in its booth.

The Missouri Division of Health and the Missouri Dental Association explain their functions in separate exhibits.

A film depicting student instruction and other activities of the University of Missouri, Columbia, is being screened and pamphlets on its phases of education are available to the public.

The Missouri Training School for girls and boys have canned goods that were canned by the boys and handicraft work by the girls.

Several commercial exhibits are in the building.

There are about 35,000 plants in the United States processing milk, butter, cheese, ice cream, and other dairy products.

Carnival Folk Have Slangage All Their Own

While making a run, much time is spent in the pie car. After setting up, openings and ballys are made to build a tip from the marks. Either the tip is turned or blown by talkers. Grinders and ten-in-ones talk without ballys. Grab shops and novelties are framed. The show is sloughed down to make another run. Before going into winter a tear down takes place.

Each profession has a language of its own and this is the one that makes sense to people in show business. For people like us, the paragraph should read:

While moving the show to another town, much time is spent in the train dining car. After show equipment is put up, the men who advertise the shows by talking in front try to get people to purchase tickets and come into the show, with the aid of chorus girls and stars standing on the stage, perhaps performing. The people either buy tickets and come into the show or continue on around the midway. Those who have shows that don't contain persons or sideshows which can't show their acts without the aid of personnel. Hamburger and soft drink stands and different shows are created. The show is torn down to go to another location and when winter comes, is torn down until the next season starts.

The first compulsory pasteurization milk law was enacted in 1908 in Chicago.

Ham-Curing Recipe
CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. (P)—You can't beat the old-fashioned country method for curing those delicious Tennessee hams. So says R. C. Freeman, who has just won the grand championship in Montgomery County's Old Fashioned Ham Show. He does it like this:

Wait for a frosty morning to kill your hogs. Let the hams chill overnight. Next morning, salt them down.

Keep them in salt about four weeks. Then wash off the salt and hang the hams in the smokehouse. Smoke them for two or three weeks, off and on, with hickory wood and sawdust.

When they are browned just right, take them down, put them in sacks and wrap with paper to keep the meat from drying.

Philip Morris' Johnny Jr. Will Visit Sedalia and Fair 3 Days

Johnny Jr. of Philip Morris, the world's most famous living trade-mark, will make a three-day personal visit to Sedalia on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Johnny, with his red coat and brass buttons and his call for Philip Morris, is known by radio and television audiences from coast to coast. He is easily identified by the millions who see Philip Morris' advertising and magazine ads or who have seen his cheerful smile on the live-size facsimiles of Johnny in store windows all over America.

Johnny was discovered by an advertising agency executive who gave him a card on which was written "Call for Philip Morris". Given a tip, he was told to make the call just as it was written. His enunciation of the slogan and his clear bell-like tone have been heard by millions since that day.

Accompanying Johnny on his local tour in his bright red convertible roadster, custom built down to his small size, is his traveling companion as well as L. J. McCown, the local Philip Morris representative.

The lightweight Philip Morris good-will ambassador, whose age

Johnny will be seen at the Missouri State Fair, Crown Drug, Kroegers, A. and P., and Richards.

Barn Full of Sheep Holds FFA Boys' Finq Prize Winners

Where to put the lambs would have been a major 1952 Missouri State Fair problem if the Swine Pavilion had not been made available due to the Missouri quarantine on all swine shows.

The huge barn is full of sheep with a large entry in the Junior Departments. Both the lambs and the showmen have put new life over on the "hill" where many sleep in the adjoining aisles and care for their flocks. Judge of the lamb classes was Albert J. Dyer, Columbia, who made the awards by the Danish system of blue, red and white. Carl M. Humphrey, Jefferson City, is superintendent of the Future Farmers of America Department. His assistant in the lamb division is R. D. Hagan, Warrensburg. Numerous specials were added to State Fair premiums by the various breed associations.

Awards as follows: (B means Blue, R means Red and W means White).

Ex-Cowboy Makes Stagecoach Models

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Once a Texas Panhandle cowpoke, William E. Jeffreys, 62, has spent the last six years building models of wagons and stage coaches used when he was a youth.

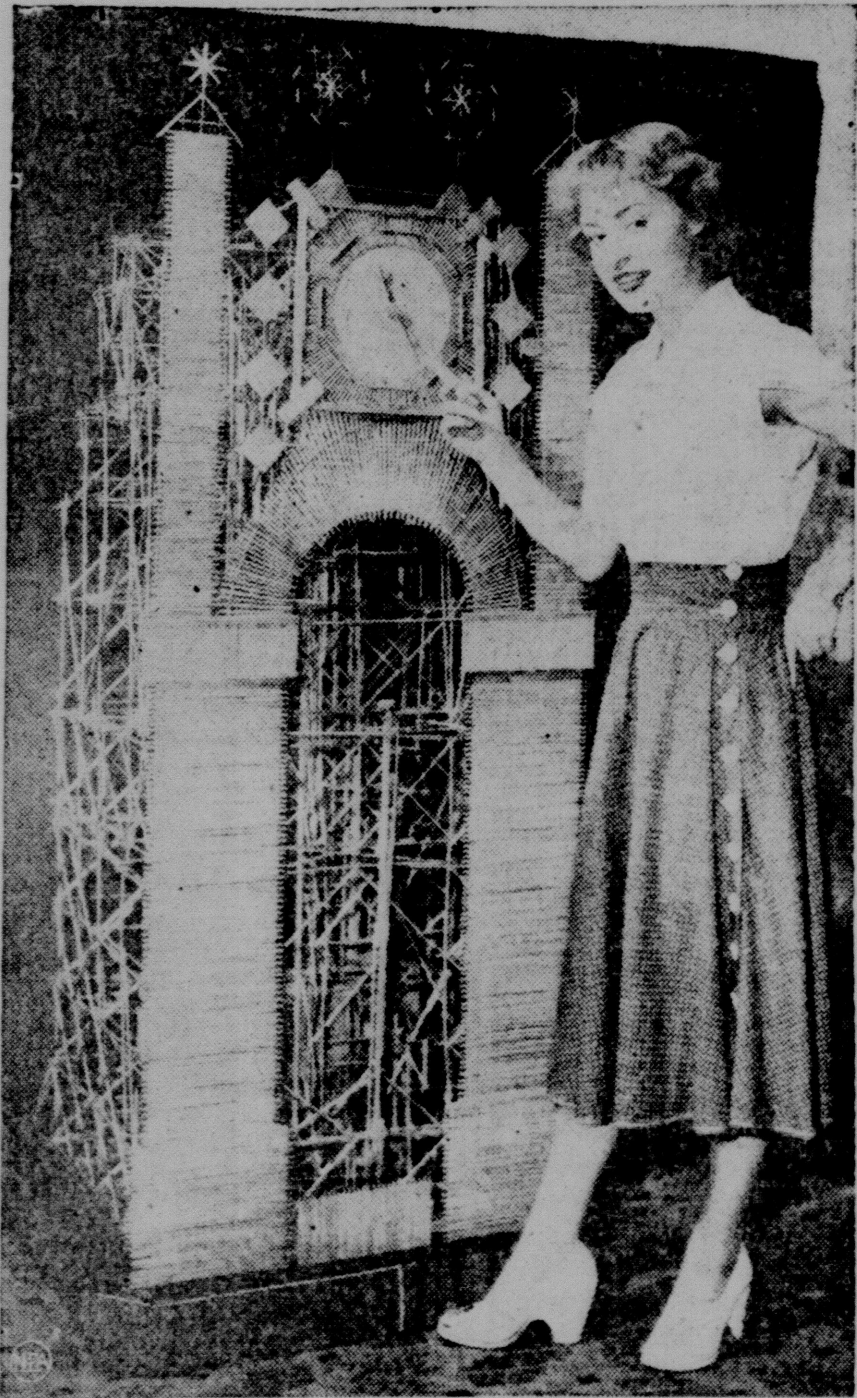

"Recently," said Jeffreys, "I looked at the wagons and decided something was missing—it was the horses."

So now he's making miniature animals to go along with his models. Jeffreys' first miniature was of the chuck wagon he "followed on the XIT ranch back in 1908."

Girls Reject Co-Education

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Boys argued for it in a broadcast program but the girls said "no" to co-education.

The girls' reason: it hampers scholastic progress by inspiring "unnecessary sentiment."

IT AIN'T HAY—But it IS straw. This German miss in Hanau points to the face of a clock made out of straws which took 15 years to build. It was started in 1892 by Otto Wegener, a shoemaker and amateur clockmaker and completed in 1907. Although it stands five and a half feet high, it weighs only about a pound. It runs about eight hours. Everything in it, down to the smallest balance wheel is made of straw.

Dairy Queen's 12th Anniversary Observed Here

A nationwide organization which entered the refreshment field 12 years ago is celebrating its birthday this week. Dairy Queen began its career in 1941 with three stores. Today, there are 1,768 stores in 47 states, Hawaii, Cuba, Alaska and Guam. All stores are members of the Dairy Queen National Trade Association, Inc., the largest organization of its kind.

Dairy Queen's nationwide birthday will be celebrated locally by the store at 1401 South Limit.

Dairy Queen is a wholesome, freshly frozen dairy food, pasteurized and homogenized. Since milk is its principal ingredient, it is creating a valuable, new market for the dairy farmer.

Nationally advertised Dairy Queen is sold only in Dairy Queen stores. It is available in "the cone with the curl on top," sundaes, milk shakes, malts and carry-home cartons.

With time on their hands before they gave a splendid military drill Monday afternoon, the Elkettes from Oklahoma drove the guests of Richmond Cox, publicity director of the Cettin and Wilson Shows. He gave the 35 girls free trips on most of the rides in the carnival.

He Knows of Death

There was a note of irony Monday night—and probably will be on through the week—as Billy Senior announced the thrilling high-in-the-sky-act in front of the grandstand. He was telling how the two youth perform 135 feet in the air without any net or other safety device. "One slip—one wrong move," he said as he hinted at their possible fate. He knows whereof he speaks when he asks that "God be with them." Mr. Senior's wife was an aerial star who plunged to her death from one of those tall poles.

Highest Priced Barker

The highest priced barker—and the most widely publicized—is Peter Gary, who draws the crowds to the Raynell Girls' Show. He started the season as the singing star of the show—in his name appears out front, as does his picture. When the barker became ill, he started pinch-hitting and soon was the regular, haying to give up his part in the show because a singer can't bark.

Scout Day at Fair

The Girl Scout office will observe the day by having the girls at other offices in the Courthouse. That is, they will be closed every afternoon and all day Thursday, Saturday, Aug. 23, the Missouri State Fair officials have designated as Scout Saturday. Any boy or girl in Scout uniform will be admitted free and may ride on any ride for nine cents.

Horse Show Goes Indoors

Meanwhile the horse show, results of which are elsewhere on this page, was drawing a large crowd for its first indoor—in the Coliseum.

And on the midway, and wherever the exhibits and displays were clamoring for the public, there Mr. and Mrs. John Q. and all the children were gathered. There were good crowds everywhere.

Daredevil Thrill

Monday night in front of the grandstand the Joie Chitwood Auto Daredevils gave an exceptionally large crowd for a thrill show—many spine tingling chills as the drivers put the cars through evasive maneuvers.

Driving through a burning wall and taking new cars over ramps, scooting them along on two wheels barely to keep from slipping over, were the minor thrills. Real spectacles were the crash rolling of old jalopies, purposely rolling them so they would land on all four wheels.

Then as a climax, was the crashing of one jalopy into two others in a wham-bang smashup that not only looked real, but was.

Patrol Warns on New Driver License Application Exams

Applications for examinations for automobile and truck drivers licenses since Aug. 1 have been pouring in and designated members of the highway patrol to conduct them have approved a large number.

In the country zone, which includes Sedalia and four counties—Pettis, Johnson, Benton and Henry—Sgt. W. F. Meisberger, in charge, states about 70 per cent of new applicants filled out requests for the exams.

Sgt. John F. Watkins, Troop A, Lee's Summit, in charge of the 13 counties in this area, states about 50 per cent Jackson County had made returns.

Sergeant Watkins points out driver's license applications must be returned within a 60-day period direct to the Department of Revenue, Jefferson City, where they will be cancelled. He states

Truman May Drop Out Of Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman may drop out of the presidential campaign for a while after he and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois share Labor Day's political stage.

Stevenson's strategy board is reported to have postponed it a Springfield, Ill., meeting last weekend until final decision on how much campaigning the President should do.

Members said it was the feeling that any appearances by Truman—other than his Labor Day speech in Milwaukee after Stevenson has talked in Detroit the same day—ought to be delayed until there are more developments in the campaign.

Unless the plans are changed, Truman's activities there would be limited largely to speeches in industrial centers of the East.

Sen. James E. Murray of Montana said after a White House visit yesterday that Truman tentatively had accepted an invitation to speak at the dedication of Hungary's Dam in Montana early in October.

However, Truman's stipulation that he must make the date fit into his engagement schedule apparently was an indication that it will be checked with Stevenson first.

What the Democratic presidential nominee and Truman have to say in their Labor Day speeches about labor issues, particularly about repeal or revision of the Taft-Hartley Act, will be compared closely.

While their views on labor questions may parallel, Stevenson is expected to depart from the Truman farm program in his next major campaign address, tentatively set for Sept. 5 or 6 at the National Plowing Contest in Minnesota.

Unless there is a last-minute switch, associates said they expect the Illinois governor to scuttle the Brannan Farm Plan.

This plan, originated by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, calls among other things for government subsidies on perishable farm products.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa said he will leave it to Eisenhower to outline his own farm views. But Hickenlooper said conferences with the general have convinced him the GOP nominee has "a thorough understanding of the farm problem."

Sen. Murray said in a statement he believes "Westerners in particular and farmers in general will have more solidly Democratic this year than in 1948." However, he urged an early start on the campaign.

Murray called Eisenhower "Tom Dewey's candidate," adding that Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois had said so, "and he ought to know."

This was a reference to Dirksen's Chicago convention attack on Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, a foray that appeared to have contributed toward withdrawal of the welcome sign for Dirksen by a Providence, R. I., group he had been invited to address Sept. 7.

Robert Brown, president of the Rhode Island Republican Club, said he thought it would be better if Dirksen didn't appear at a party campaign opening clambake because the "prejudices" he said Dirksen had created might hurt Republican candidates.

There is no provision for the return of the $1 fee paid originally.

Each applicant is notified at least twice, if necessary, as to the time and place for examinations.

In making applications, a receipt acknowledgment on application is only a receipt for money paid and does not give the privilege to drive except when it is attached to a driver's expired license, and then is only good for a 60-day period from the date of application.

The only time a receipt is valid in itself is after the applicant has passed examination and it is approved, signed and dated by the examiner.

The receipt is good only for the time necessary for the applicant's examination papers to be sent to the director of revenue and for him to send back the valid license. This should be within a period of two to three weeks.

Will Post Food Ceilings in All Grocery Stores

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government stepped up plans today to post dollars and cents food price ceilings on the walls of more than half of the nation's 500,000 grocery stores by Oct. 1.

The Office of Price Stabilization said orders will go out shortly to its 54 district offices to get the pricing charts ready for posting. Each poster is expected to show the ceilings for some 300 major market-basket items.

The action will be a return to the uniform community pricing program used in World War II. Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall said this has proved to be the most effective means of food price control. He said the program will have two big advantages:

1. It will let consumers know at a glance the ceiling prices on many basic foods they buy.
2. It will relieve grocers of the necessity of calculating individual ceilings on the items that must be posted.

OPS said the decision to expand the community pricing program from coast to coast is based on results from trial tests in three areas started last January. The agencies said these tests have been a success in the marketing areas surrounding Jacksonville, Fla.; Fargo, N. D., and Fresno, Calif. Officials said both consumer and trade groups in those areas have asked that the program be continued.

The lists to be posted will be selected from about 40 per cent of the approximately 5,000 items sold by grocers. The OPS district offices will pick the items from the best-selling foods in their communities and their importance to the family budget.

Fresh, frozen and canned fruits and vegetables will not be included. These items, making up an estimated 20 per cent of a family's food costs, were exempted by Congress July 1.

Meats, which account for the remaining 40 per cent of food items, also will not be included at this time. Meats are subject to dollars and cents ceilings but butchers only have to label the selling price on meat displayed.

Individual grocers have been figuring their own ceilings, using specified markups on various types of food over their wholesale costs. Prices have varied from store to store.

Under the new plan OPS will determine wholesale costs in an area and apply the markups to get uniform ceilings. OPS will provide the charts, each month, on the basis of changes each week. The charts will differ from store to store depending on the volume of business done by each grocer.

Lady 'Everybody Trusted' Held For Embezzlement

DIERKS, Ark. (AP)—Mrs. Opal Simmington, 49-year-old assistant cashier of the Bank of Dierks, was known in this Southeastern Arkansas lumber town as a woman "everybody trusted."

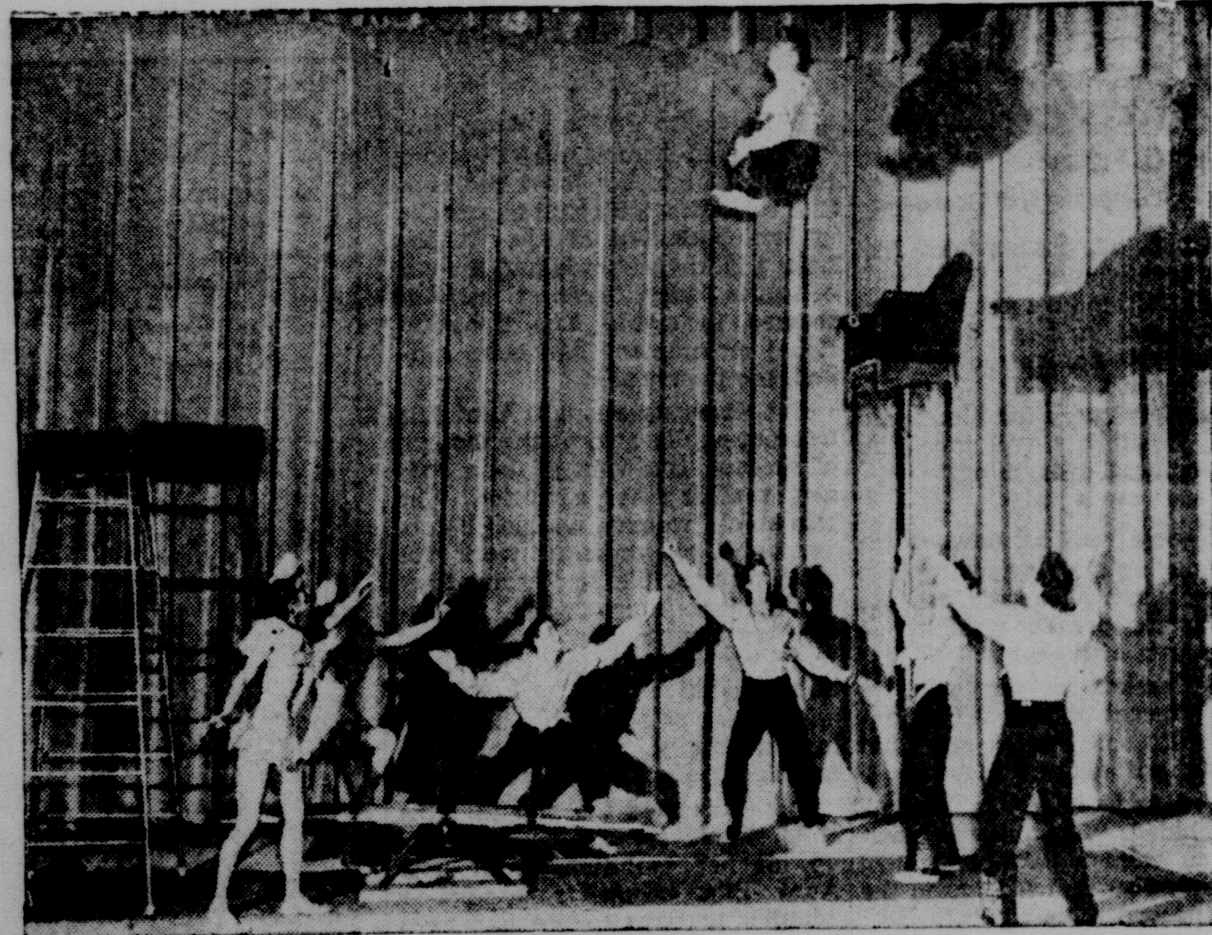

The attractive, dark-haired divorcee had been in charge of the bank's bookkeeping department for 20 years. She was also city treasurer.

Today nearly $73,000 of the bank's funds were missing, the FBI reported.

And Mrs. Simmington was charged with making false entries. She was arraigned yesterday before U. S. Commissioner Elmer Tackett of Hot Springs, Ark. After waiving preliminary examination, she was released in $7,500 bond.

The $72,990 shortage in the bank's books was discovered by examiners of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation on Aug. 11. M. W. McFarlin, chief of the FBI at Little Rock, said evidence showed the books had been manipulated for almost 20 years.

MARVELS--At Tumbling

The world's greatest aggregation of better-board acrobats, the Marvels, will be on hand to thrill the grandstand show crowds at the Missouri State Fair starting Aug. 19 through Aug. 24.

Long billed as stars of the big top, the Marvels will bring all of the thrills and daredevil stunts born of four generations of circusdom.

The troupe is composed of four men and three women who give an extraordinary exhibition of precision, timing and gravity-defying gyrations. One of their many thrilling stunts is a backward double-somersault executed by one member. While blindfolded, he plums through the air into a 14 foot high perch chair. Other daring stunts include forward double somersaults, full twisting somersault with a spectacular shoulder catch, and somersault capped by a three-high standing formation.

Their whirlwind acrobatics are seldom broken by a pause and the troupe works at breakneck speed from start to finish.

All of their stunts are conceived and developed by themselves which gives the presentation its own individuality.

The Marvels were winners of the International Congress of acrobats in Paris, France, for two consecutive years. This is the highest distinction performers in their field can achieve.

The troupe has not only won high acclaim in the United States and in Europe, but have been lauded in every major city in the world.

Stevenson 'No' To National Plowing Contest

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson's date to make a major farm speech at Minnesota's National Plowing Contest was called off today after contest officials declined to permit him to speak the same day as Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Wilson W. Wyatt, the governor's campaign manager in Springfield, issued a pre-dawn statement saying contest officials had reversed their position in barring a Sept. 6 speech by the Democratic presidential nominee.

He also charged they backed down on a subsequent decision to make the whole arrangement conditional on Eisenhower's approval.

Stevenson's office had announced last night that the governor would make his farm speech at the contest in Kasson, Minn., at 3 p. m. that day—just four hours after Eisenhower's scheduled appearance.

Eisenhower had accepted the invitation two days earlier.

But the contest executive committee decided after a four-hour meeting early today to invite the governor to speak Sept. 5—with Eisenhower appearing as scheduled the following day.

Wyatt telegraphed the committee that neither Stevenson nor John Sparkman, the democratic vice presidential nominee, could appear Sept. 5 because of prior commitments.

Son of Show People to Hold Birthday Party at Birthplace

Andre' Antinore will celebrate his third birthday this year at the Missouri State Fair. Andre' was born three years ago on Aug. 31, but his mother, "Antenori", who was with the Ernie Young revue before Andre's birth, likes to have his birthday party in Sedalia, where he was born.

Every year Dr. E. L. Rhoades, who attended Andre' when he was born, sends the boy a birthday cake. Last year he was with his mother at the State Fair at Des Moines, Ia., but Dr. Rhoades sent the cake just the same and Andre' was honored with a birthday party, which was held on a vacant lot near the fair.

Since Andre' celebrated his second birthday he has been working in professional and commercial photography. His mother said that through the Williams Agency in Los Angeles where he is registered, Andre' has posed for numerous photographs used in advertising.

This year Andre' will become a member of the Children's Theatre Guild in Hollywood and will take screen tests for several motion picture studios. At present he is also being considered for advertising work by the Heinz Baby Food Company, she said.

"Antenori", Andre's mother, he declared. "They never would have to agree with us on the principle of no forced repatriation."

Nam II was visibly angered by some of Harrison's remarks in the conference tent.

The Red negotiator was particularly nettled when Harrison said the Communists "call the Chinese soldiers volunteers but when it comes to volunteering not to go home they (Communists) won't recognize that."

The bagpipe is regarded as Asiatic in origin and is counted among the most ancient of music-makers, says the National Geographic Society.

Sees Armistice As Possible, No Idea As to When

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Maj. Gen. William Harrison, senior U. N. Command armistice delegate, said today he thought "an armistice is possible but I haven't the faintest idea when."

He made the observation at a news conference shortly after U. N. and Communist negotiators traded acid words for an hour at Panmunjom and made "no visible progress" toward settlement of the true-blocking issue of prisoner exchange.

The delegations called a fourth straight week-long recess. Gen. Nam II, senior Red delegate, protested, then agreed to setting the next meeting for Aug. 27.

On chances of the talks to succeed, Harrison declared:

"I've thought the Communists do want an armistice. It is a matter of how much they are willing to pay for it."

Harrison said it was possible for Reds to accept the U. N. position on prisoners.

"They could give us a good cussing out and then accept our offer,"

First Pony Ride Also Is His Last

WESTTOWN, N. Y. (AP)—Twelve-year-old Clarence Arthur Horler couldn't wait to try the new pony his father had bought him.

So he and his father, also named Clarence, saddled the pony yesterday. Then the father left for his farm chores.

Young Clarence took his first ride—and his last.

He was dragged over a stone field and through a pond. He died shortly after he was taken to a nearby hospital.

It was not clear what happened, but the father said the boy had tied a rope from his waist to the saddle horn.

agents, a private auditing firm, and agents of the State Bank Commission worked throughout the night in efforts to clear up the situation.

Employed by the bank for 32 years, Mrs. Simmington has been living with her mother, Mrs. Mattie Epperson, in a modest frame house. She was divorced about 15 years ago.

Tom F. Westbrook, cashier and only other bank employee, said Mrs. Simmington was always "faithful in reporting for work."

Quadruple Amputee Is Married Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here is a happy chapter in the story of the young Army corporal whose loss of both hands and both legs in the Korean fighting touched America's heartstrings:

Robert L. Smith, 22, of Middleburg, Pa., was married last night in the little chapel at Ft. Lincoln Cemetery to Barbara Borm, a pretty 17-year-old brunette of Takoma Park, Md.

Bob and his bride-to-be drove up in his own car, which he drives with skill.

Four canaries inside the little chapel almost drowned out the voices of the two as they repeated the words of the minister, the Rev. Edgar W. Beckett of the First Methodist Church of Hyattsville, Md.

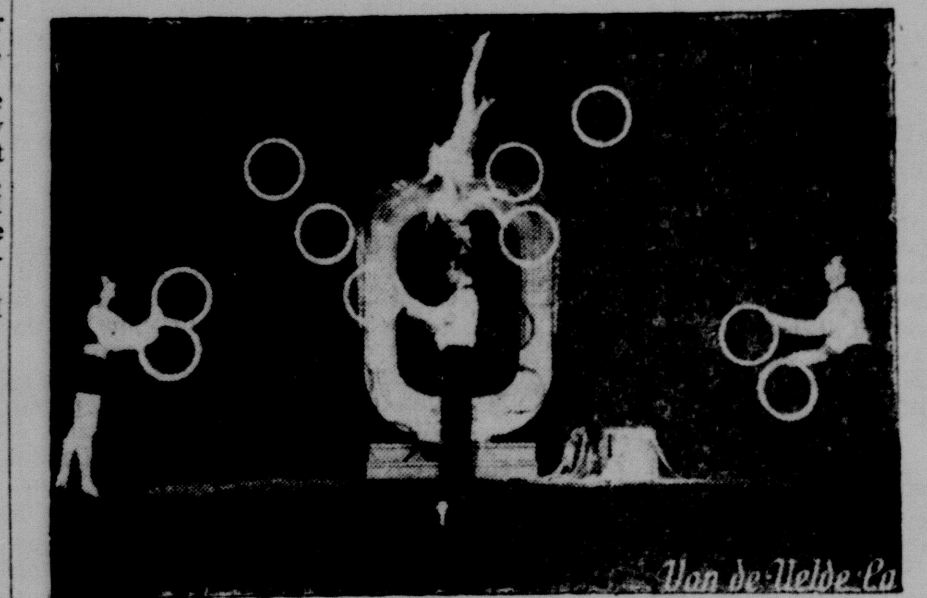

The wedding was a simple affair, with only two others besides the principals present: a maid of honor, Phillis Anderson of Wheaton, and best man Staley Borm of Takoma Park.

The quadruple amputee and his bride met while he was in Walter Reed Army Medical Center. Barbara and a girl friend had gone to the hospital to take magazines to patients.

Post 16 Holds Short Meeting

American Legion Post 16 held its regular meeting Monday at 114½ East Fifth.

Due to the fair the meeting was cut short and the only business discussed was the erection of a lunch and refreshment stand at the fair grounds for the Central Missouri Electric Cooperative meeting to be held Aug. 26.

Van De Velde Company

The Van De Velde Company, one of the most outstanding circus troupes to migrate from Europe since the war, will be among the many featured performers to appear in the grandstand show of the Missouri State Fair starting Aug. 19 through Aug. 24.

One of the thrilling contributions to the act is a beautiful young lady billed as Miss Elly. This personable and skilled performer does a one-fingerstand on a water glass placed on top of a bottle. Miss Elly is said to be one of only two performers in the world who have ever mastered this trick.

Other feats accomplished by this amazing troupe include head to head balancing acts. One of the most outstanding is one in which a male member supports a girl in head to head stand. While poised in this position, they juggle and whirl hoops. At the same time, the girl simultaneously uses her feet to balance a table.

Another of their amazing stunts is a head to head stand with the feminine member playing a violin, while executing the head balance.

Miss Elly, a beautiful French girl, wears no gloves during her thrilling one-fingered stand so that the audience may be assured there are no props in this accomplishment.

Since their arrival in America, the Van De Velde troupe have been widely acclaimed as the outstanding circus performers of their time.

Many other stars are included on the huge bill of events scheduled for the grandstand show, according to fair officials.

Every day when a man walks home from work he sees a small girl riding a tricycle up and down in front of her home.

The child is a regular little question box and she has taken a fancy to the man.

"What's your name, Mister?" she called across the street to him one day.

Not wanting to yell out his name across the street, the man just said: "Oh, I'm one of the Jones boys."

The next day the youngster saw him across the street again.

"Hello, Mr. Jones," she shouted.

"Hello, honey," came the answer.

"Mr. Jones," asked the child, "Are you married?"

"No, honey," he replied, "I'm waiting for you," and strolled on.

The third day she was watching for him.

"Oh, Mr. Jones," she called out sweetly, "When are you and I going to get married?"

Mr. Jones thinks he is going to have to change his route home or before he knows it he is going to have to marry the little girl.—H. L.

A reporter went out to the Fairgrounds to interview the girl with the green hair in one of the carnival shows.

The green haired girl has a macaw, a talking bird. She let the bird out of the cage and as they talked the bird kept walking up and down the reporter's arm, taking a friendly little nip, now and then, that didn't really hurt.

"The bird is friendly with you," said the green haired girl to the reporter. "It took quite a chunk out of my husband's arm when we were in Florida." Then she continued, "You know they can disfigure you, too."

That was enough for the reporter—she wasn't taking any more chances—she just handed the lovely feathered creature over to its owner with: "Here, you take your bird."—H. L.

Usually a storm doesn't bother her, but the thunder of a recent electrical storm must have been something out of the ordinary for a young married woman woke up and found herself kneeling at a window. The thunder didn't quite wake her up—it just made her unconsciously get up and go to the window—the rain probably did the trick—for when she did wake up there she was on her knees.

"It's raining," she said in a drowsy tone to her sleeping young husband.

In almost as unconscious a condition as she was when she went to the window, too, put it down and they both went back to bed.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round Guest Writer Says Secret Service Must Be Versatile

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

(NOTE TO EDITORS: While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by several distinguished guest columnists, today's being Hon. U. E. Baughman, Chief of the United States Secret Service.)

WASHINGTON — The duties of a special agent of the United States Secret Service, an agency of the Treasury Department, may require that one day he will be engaged in undercover work, posing as a delinquent or shady character in Skid Row; a week later he may be just as inconspicuous, dressed in white tie and tails at a social function at the White House. A secret service agent has to know the vernacular of the crook and have the diplomacy of the statesman.

Secret Service Agents are specialists in detecting counterfeit and forged government obligations and in protecting the Chief Executive of the United States. Their work brings them into a variety of experiences.

Even in an average check case unusual circumstances may arise as in a case in South Dakota. The suspected forger was an Indian woman, living at Cherry Creek, near the Cheyenne River. The agent started for the Indian village. At Plum Creek, he found a bridge had been washed away; no boat was available. The agent removed his outer clothing and rolled it up with his case file and gun inside, then held the roll over his head while swimming across the river to the Indian village. There he learned the Indian woman had married and now lived fifteen miles down stream. He went there and found the family had moved several miles into country so rough that it would only be reached on foot or horseback. With a borrowed horse he traveled to the new location and obtained a confession from the woman.

Perfectionist Counterfeiters

After World War II, the flow of counterfeit money increased not only in the United States but also in Europe and other parts of the world. Protection of our currency became a world-wide necessity for the first time. Special agents were sent to these countries working with police of various nations, the agents seized the counterfeiters and their plants.

The last group arrested was in Hong Kong when five Chinese were seized with their plates and over $600,000 in counterfeit United States $50 and $100 bills. These notes were so carefully reproduced they could easily have deceived the average bank teller.

Counterfeiters are the cleverest of criminals. They are cunning and cautious in their dealings. They weigh all risks and guard against them. Now and then one with a conscience is caught. One such was seized in Chicago recently. He was caught by a secret service agent who had posed as a criminal and purchased $100,000 in counterfeit notes to break up one of the biggest rings in the United States. The leader of the ring told agents he had considered quitting many times and had made up his mind that this was to have been the last deal. He said too many people got hurt from his operations—not only those who tried to pass phony bills, but also the innocent victims who got stuck with counterfeiters. Counterfeiters, too, take pride in their work. After one was arrested on the West Coast for the fifth time, he remarked to the agents who had raided his plant that he did not expect to see the Secret Service for a couple of years because he thought his latest product was so good as to be beyond detection.

A counterfeiter of coins made the reeding (indentations on the edges) too deep. When asked why, he replied, "It is my mint and I like them that way."

One of the most serious problems confronting the Secret Service is the forgery of government checks. While the Secret Service is trying constantly to educate the merchant against this type of crime, the loss of which in government checks alone to merchants in 1951 was over $2,250,000, invariably business people will carelessly accept government checks from total strangers without question. For example:

1. The grocer who cashed a government check plainly marked "Old Age and Survivor's Insurance" for a 12-year-old boy.

2. The druggist who gave a

VINCENT WESTON listened to Louise as she told him about her longing to paint.

"And Cousin Harry wouldn't even let you continue your art studies?"

"It wasn't entirely his fault," she said. "There was so much to do, keeping house."

"He could have hired a maid," said Vincent. "It makes him feel that he is somebody. That's why he keeps you at home and gives you no freedom. Jealousy, perhaps. In his heart he's afraid of you, afraid of your mind, afraid he will lose you. Not really lose you—you aren't the type who would run away, but he doesn't want you to be mentally independent of himself for fear you might judge him."

"Not that bad really," Louise said mildly in defense of her husband. "Probably Harry's father was the same way—it's the way he was brought up."

"True. It's a family tradition. But why do you put up with it?"

"It won't do me any good to rebel, Vincent. It would only break up my home, and I don't want to live in an atmosphere of constant quarreling."

"You'd rather kill your own soul—that secret rebellion is eating out your heart."

"No," Louise smiled at the excited little man, her husband's cousin. "I'm not really rebellious now. At first I was. I hated Harry when I began to find out what he was really like. But gradually I've become resigned. The anger has gone. I know that Harry can't help himself. He believes he is a good husband. There are many men like he is, unable to appreciate brains or talent in a woman. They have to feel their power—feel that they are superior in their own home. That I could do anything better than he, makes him feel inferior to a woman."

"He's afraid to give you a chance to show what you can do," Vincent said. "He knows you are better than he is."

"I feel very sorry for him," said Louise. "I think I still love him too. In spite of everything."

THEY were walking down Fifth Avenue on a lovely spring day. The streets were crowded because a suffragette parade was scheduled for that afternoon.

"What makes women want to vote?" Vincent demanded impatiently. "French women get what they want without voting."

"You're talking like Harry," Louise chided. "But today so many American women earn their own living they feel that they need the vote to protect their rights."

"All this makes them unlovely—when women demand something. If they are attractive they can always get what they want. And if they're not attractive, what does anything matter to them anyway?"

"It's for those women the Suffragettes are fighting—to save unlovely women from being constantly downtrodden."

A distant sound of music, a sudden surging of the crowd, told them the head of the parade was approaching. Vincent and Louise found a place at the curb and watched the parade with sober faces while the long lines of serious, purposeful women passed by.

Suddenly Louise gave a gasp. Vincent, looking at her sharply, saw that her eyes were filled with tears. He took her arm with a gentle solicitude.

"It's nothing," she said shakily. "I just saw Aunt Ella. She's given her life for the suffragette cause. I used to laugh at her—she was so horribly enthusiastic—but

Chinese Reds Go 'Begging' To Russians

WASHINGTON (P)—Some American diplomats view the top-level Chinese-Russian conference in Moscow as mainly a "begging expedition" by the Chinese Reds.

These officials speculate that the Chinese are dissatisfied with Russia's promises and would plead for:

1. More financial aid to supplement the 300-million-dollar loan Moscow promised in February, 1950.
2. Bigger and faster shipments of Russian-made military supplies for hard-pressed Chinese Communist troops in Korea.
3. Removal of Russian troops from Port Arthur and return to Red China of the Changchun Railway as promised by the end of this year.

The State Department has cautiously labeled the Chinese-Soviet conference as "routine" and said such meetings by partner nations are to be expected.

But experts on Russian and Chinese affairs here feel the purpose of the huddle is aimed at finding ways to continue the Korean War rather than at any policy change which might mean peace in the Far East.

The makeup of the 15-man Chinese Communist delegation, headed by Premier-Foreign Minister Chou En-lai, appeared to them to point to war objectives, with paralleling attention to economic and financial problems.

Most officials seemed to agree Zhou and Russian Deputy Prime Minister Andrei Vishinsky would review the friendship and alliance treaty they signed Feb. 14, 1950, along with separate agreements dealing with Port Arthur, the Changchun Railway and Dairen.

All these properties are now at least partly controlled and operated by the Russians. Under the 1950 agreements, Moscow promised to pull out of Port Arthur and nearby installations and return the Changchun Railway to Red China.

American officials believe that if Russia is to live up to these promises, conferences of the type now going on in Moscow undoubtedly are necessary to settle details.

The future of Dairen undoubtedly will come up for discussion although Russia made no promises to return this port at any specific date.

To back up their belief the Chinese Reds might ask for a fatter Russian loan, officials pointed out that Russia has devalued the ruble since the last credit was announced cutting its value by one-fourth. The loan was to be extended during a five-year period in installments of 60 million dollars each.

Such small sums, these officials reason, can hardly support a nation the size of China which has been involved in a full-fledged war for more than a year.

Recurring but unverified reports from Far East intelligence sources have pictured the Chinese Reds as disgruntled with the rate of Russian arms deliveries. Soviet weapons go to China via the Trans-Siberian Railway and by Polish, Siberian and other Communist ships.

Truman Takes Lid Off Oil Secret Reports

WASHINGTON (P)—President Truman has ordered the lid off a long-secret report on international oil deals amid new charges that a rich and powerful oil cartel is siphoning U. S. foreign aid funds.

The report, which may have diplomatic repercussions abroad, promptly became fuel for a federal grand jury which will open next month an investigation of alleged price fixing and monopoly practices in the oil industry.

Decision to lift the official secret label from the report, a year after it was written by Federal Trade Commission staff experts, was announced yesterday by Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, the Democratic nominee for vice president.

Sparkman spoke as head of the Senate small business subcommittee, and as the man whose public demand for the information presumably resulted in the presidential order. The Alabamian said his subcommittee would make an investigation of its own before passing judgment on the FTC findings.

Sparkman said the 10-chapter report is being printed now by his subcommittee and "probably will be available for distribution by the end of this week."

The state department has acknowledged that it had the document classified as secret for security reasons and lest its contents further inflame relations between British oil interests and the government of Iran.

"It is my opinion that its release at this time is not likely to jeopardize our national security or undermine the aims of our foreign policy," Sparkman said in a prepared statement. "The security aspect of the matter has been cleared with responsible agencies of government."

In swift follow-up developments: 1. The Justice Department moved to subpoena the report for its recently ordered federal grand jury investigation of monopoly charges against seven U. S. and foreign oil companies.

2. Sen. Hennings (D-Mo.) fired new accusations of intrigue at the oil firms, charging they form a cartel and a "giant conspiracy" for profiteering against European nations which receive U. S. dollar aid.

Hennings renewed accusations that the oil companies charge those countries a higher price for oil than they charge buyers in this country and Canada, contending that this has added huge sums to the costs of U. S. foreign aid.

Sparkman's statement said the suppressed report "traces the substantial control by seven international oil companies over the petroleum industry of the world."

The World Today— Magic of Campaigning-1952

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (P)—This is the year when the presidential candidates breeze around like the kid on the flying carpet. Candidates used to campaign by train. Gen. Eisenhower and Gov. Stevenson will criss-cross the country by train and plane.

They must be great believers in the magic of personal appearances for that's really doing it the hard way in a year like this when for the first time TV virtually blankets the nation.

In the long run even the wear and tear of whirling around the country may be easier on them than if they sat down face to face in front of a nation-wide TV hookup and debated.

Sen. Moody, Michigan Democrat, suggested they do just that. And NBC President Joseph McConnell has offered them radio and TV time for a debate on the issues.

Unless they've challenged one another in confidential correspondence which hasn't been revealed, neither man has shown enthusiasm for the idea.

All the issues in the campaign, so far as the voters are concerned, can be reduced to a couple of questions about the candidates themselves: (1) How well can they think, and (2) what are their intentions if elected?

One or the other of the candidates might wreck himself, but the voters would benefit, if Eisenhower and Stevenson had a face to face encounter in full view of the whole country on a TV screen.

When the two men were examining each other's mind in public neither would have the chance, if he wanted it, to find refuge behind high pronouncements, vague promises.

that the oil companies charge those countries a higher price for oil than they charge buyers in this country and Canada, contending that this has added huge sums to the costs of U. S. foreign aid.

Rotary Club Has Carnival Entertainment

Richmond Cox, publicity man for the Cetlin and Wilson Shows now playing on the midway at the Missouri State Fair, told Rotarians Monday noon about the entertainment and attractions to be found at the carnival.

Mr. Cox introduced several people from the carnival, Raynell, the producer, Lash LaRue, western star, and Siska, the girl with the green hair. Siska, also, gave a talk on her show.

The meeting, which was held at Bothwell Hotel, was presided over by W. E. Hurlbut, Jr., president, and invocation was by the Rev. Glen Lindley. Fred Brink led the singing with Miss Lillian Fox at the piano.

The program chairman for the day was Charles Barnard, who introduced Mr. Cox.

The Rev. Glen Lindley, who is leaving for his new home in Mississippi, made a few farewell remarks.

Visitors were introduced by Floyd Priddy as follows: E. W. Lansdown, guest of E. W. Thompson, Rotarians Dr. C. E. Anderson, St. Charles, Ill., A. F. Johnson and Larry Griffith, Port Allegany, Pa.

Goodwill ambassadors were Nolan Bricken to Warrensburg, Lexington and Marshall, Frank Bryant, Warrensburg, Oscar DeWolf, Warrensburg, Louis Rayton, Higginsville.

Auto Ceilings May Be Set by Dealers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning Saturday dealers may calculate their own top retail ceiling prices for new automobiles. It may lead to a slight increase.

The Office of Price Stabilization, announcing yesterday it was abandoning dollars and cents ceilings on new cars sold to the public, estimated it might mean about a 1 per cent boost in prices.

Dealers' own calculations may be pegged to one of two base periods: (1) the month before the outbreak of the Korean War, or (2) the period from Jan. 26-Feb. 24, 1951, the month after prices were frozen.

Cancer Death Rate In Women Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — New evidence that the cancer death rate among women is declining slightly was reported today by the National Cancer Institute.

The institute issued a report on a survey in Dallas, Tex., and Dallas County, showing an 18 per cent increase in reported cancer cases in 1948 compared with 1938—but an increase of "only" 2 per cent in the death rate from the disease.

Also, while the death rate increased 8 per cent among men, it declined 3 per cent among women.

Les and Vera Kimiris, acclaimed as the world's most sensational aerial performers, who will be presented in the grandstand show during the Missouri State Fair starting Aug. 19 through Aug. 24, were the rage of their native France before their embarkation for America.

Les, a former circus star, first won fame as a daredevil in World War I when he served as a fighter pilot in the French air corps.

During the war career he was shot down seven times and according to records, is reputed to have shot down 33 enemy planes.

Hal Boyle's Column—

Newsman Retires With Own Philosophy on Growing Old

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The slender man with the white shock of hair looked up from his news desk to the clock on the wall.

He pulled off his green eyeshade for the last time, and his unlined boyish face and blue eyes broke into a shy grin. The clock was saying goodbye to the men around him at the end of another working day—it was saying goodbye to him at the close of his working life.

It was a pleasant "30" on the job for Sam Ochiltree, retiring at 65 after spending 10 years as a telegrapher and 36 years as a reporter and news editor.

"In this business you hurry all your life, don't you?" he said. "That is what will seem funny from now on. I will never have to hurry again."

Hollywood never discovered Sam Ochiltree. It isn't interested in working newspapermen like Sam. And that is too bad. For his life story would make a wonderful film. But how could Hollywood dramatize a man whom no one can remember ever lifting his voice, saying a word in anger, or ever criticizing another human being?

One of Sam's first tasks as a telegrapher here in 1906 was to handle messages on the great San Francisco earthquake and fire. On his final day he edited Associated Press dispatches about a war in a place he'd never been—Korea. In between he helped cover or edit stories on most of the great news events of the century.

The constant acquaintance with disaster and the follies of human flesh that make some newsmen cynical never robbed Sam of his warm and steady sense of brotherhood.

His last hours on the job he spent breaking-in his successor—who is 21.

"He's a bright kid," said Sam. "Picks up things fast."

Sam then went across the street to an office party in his honor, and as he is a modest man this was something of an ordeal. They gave him a shaving kit, a leather-covered clock, and a fine suitcase for a trip to London he is planning. Holding up the shiny suitcase, Sam said:

"This ought to even get me by St. Peter without a passport."

The next day Sam and I met for lunch, and he gently objected to some of the ideas people have about retirement.

"People who other people regard as old don't feel that way," he said. "Oldness isn't a particular feeling—you feel the same, but you just get tired sooner. Old people have the same feeling as young people. That is why they sometimes make fools of themselves."

"For some reason people think when a man retires he has to have a hobby—something to drive him like a madman to make things out of wood."

"I have plenty of interests. For example, one of my friends is a religious editor who doesn't believe in religion. I have been trying to convince him of the value of prayer. Also, I would like to get him to start going to church."

Sam himself has always been interested in religion. "But sometimes you have to have the courage to disbelieve," he said mildly. "I have gone through the whole range, from complete unbelief to working out a faith in God that now keeps me completely happy."

Sam married at 19—the same year he became a telegrapher—and still goes home to the same girl. They have two sons, five grandsons.

"You notice how many men who live to be old have remained with the wife of their youth—like Winston Churchill," he said. "That

Ponies to School To Learn Tricks For Horse Shows

Shetland Ponies that have been to school form one of the most popular specialty acts at the horse show at the Missouri State Fair.

Adorned in chrome-plated harness, the six ponies, put on a fast stepping exhibition of teamwork and skill while pulling an authentic miniature express wagon trimmed in chrome for the Curtiss Candy Co.

Each of the wagons, carefully made in the company's own shops, cost approximately $3,000. In all about $25,000 is invested in each team.

In each team the ponies range from 42 to 46 inches in height and from 350 to 450 pounds in weight. The lightest pair lead the team and do most of the running; the medium ponies are swing team, which turn the wagon; the heaviest pair are the wheel ponies, they do most of the real pulling and give the driver the weight needed for a quick stop.

is a splendid life; for people to grow old together."

Not that Sam has any idea he is old yet. He recalled that when Abraham Lincoln left Springfield for Washington he spoke of coming there as a young man and said that now he was an old man. "Yet the greatest part of his life was ahead of him," said Sam. "What a wonderful newspaperman Abraham Lincoln would have made!"

Truman Dreams About Trip Around World

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman, his aides say, is dreaming of faraway places—countries and continents he'd like to visit after leaving the White House.

Associates said yesterday his plans for making a tour around the world are still in the discussion stage, but the President has long been anxious to visit abroad as a private citizen, free of the restrictions of protocol.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A contractor doing road repairs on the main Pasadena thoroughfare combined his work with politics.

Democrats squawked and forced police to enforce an ordinance banning political posters on city property. So today the last four words are painted out.

Vatican 'Diplomats' Training Difficult

ROME (AP) — You have to be good to be a Vatican diplomat. The Pontifical Academy of Diplomacy here that trains most of the candidates has awarded only 1,244 diplomas in the 250 years that it has functioned.

About 15 students work away at the difficult two-year course. Each year about five are graduated and another five freshmen enroll. Pope Pius, before being elected Pontiff, taught at the academy. Among its graduates are four who became popes of the Catholic Church. Another six became Vatican Secretaries of State, 98 became Cardinals, 42 became Apostolic Nuncios.

Students for the Academy are chosen by the Vatican's Apostolic Nuncios all over the world. They must be under 45, must already have a degree in Canon Law, must be in perfect physical condition, and speak Latin and another foreign language. After graduation

In a move that put the finishing touch on the long steel wage-price dispute, the OPS issued an order calling for dollars and cents per ton increases on scores of carbon steel products, and a 4.7 per cent boost for high alloy and stainless steel.

Sauer, Doby Nailing Down Homer Titles

NEW YORK — Home run leaders Hank Sauer of the Chicago Cubs and Larry Doby of the Cleveland Indians also were well on their way Tuesday toward nailing down their leagues' slugging championships.

Individual slugging averages compiled by the Associated Press reveal that Sauer, who has banged out 31 homers, is the National League slugging pace-setter with a healthy .581 mark. The hard-hitting outfielder has collected 251 total bases in 432 trips to the plate, also numbering 27 doubles and three triples among his 125 safeties.

Doby, with 223 total bases (including 26 circuit wallopers) in 388 times at bat, leads the American League with .575. The speedy Negro flycatcher also shows 18 two-baggers and eight triples among his 111 hits.

Gil Hodges, Brooklyn first baseman, is a distant second in the National League slugging derby. Hodges has compiled 192 total bases in 375 at bats for a .512 average.

Boston's Sid Gordon is third at .499, a result of 187 bases in 375 trips.

Vic Wertz, obtained by the St. Louis Browns from Detroit last week, is runnerup to Doby in the American League. Vic, a .525 slugger, has 157 bases in 299 at bats with 16 doubles, three triples and 19 round trippers.

Al Rosen, the early season leader, has slumped down to third at .515. The Cleveland third sacker has banged out 25 doubles, five triples and 20 home runs for 224 total bases.

Dickson Issues 18th Home Run Pitch

CHICAGO — When little Murry Dickson served up the game-winning gonther ball to cub's skipper Phil Cavarretta in Monday's game, it was the 18th home run bill issued by the Pittsburgh righthander this season. Wee Murry holds the major league record for circuit servings, 39, established in 1948 as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Little Phil Breaks Own Hitting 'Slump'

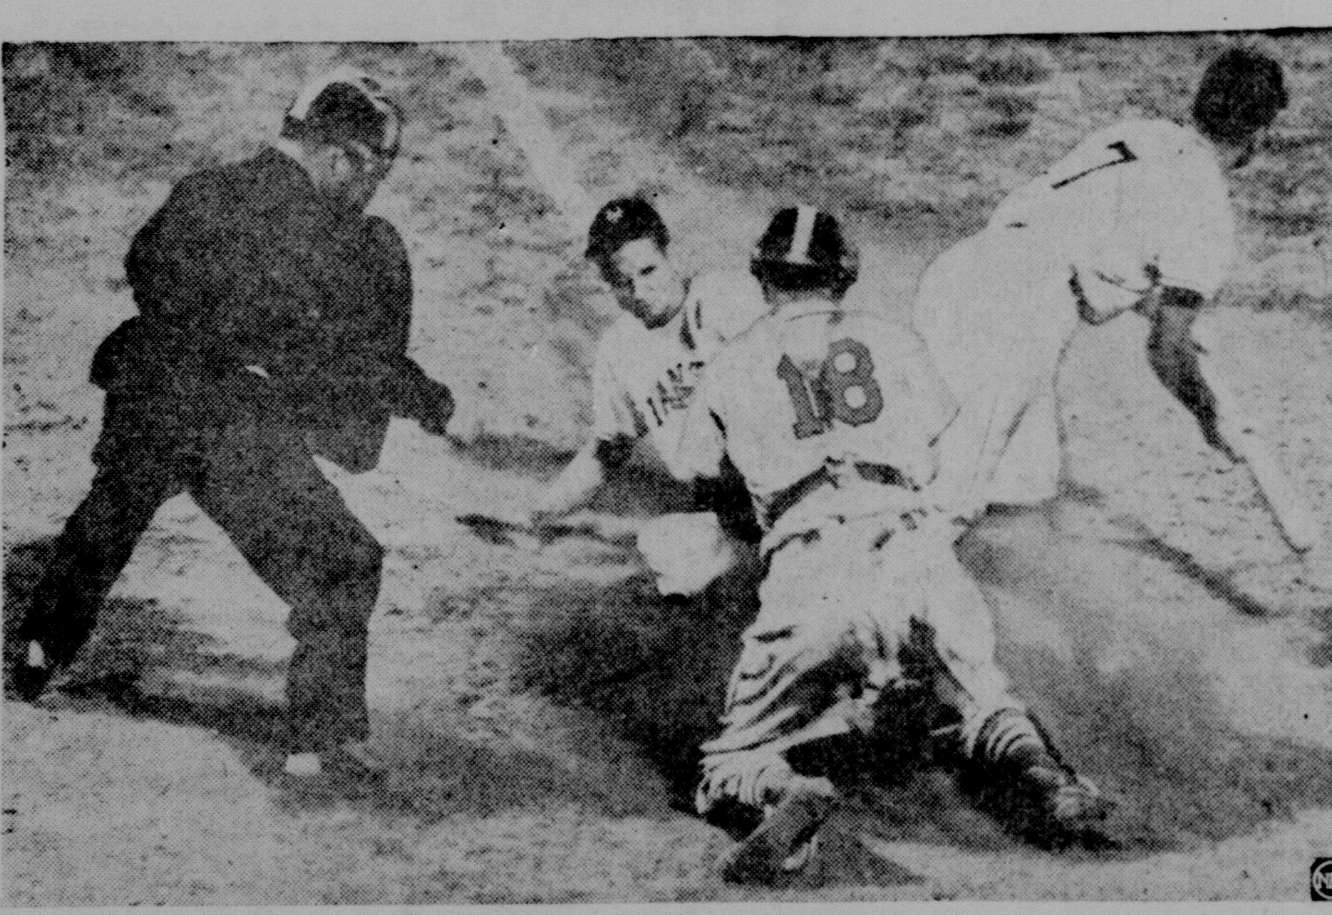

BOSTON — Phil Rizzuto's four-for-five day in Monday's game against the Red Sox was the first time this season the diminutive New York Yankee shortstop collected more than three hits in one game. Rizzuto rapped out three singles and a double.

Springfield Girls Win State Title

ST. JOSEPH — The Springfield, Mo., Central Labor Union softball team defeated the St. Joseph Goetz Girls 3-2 in nine innings Monday night and retained the state championship it won last year.

The Springfield team qualified for the women's Western Regional Tournament which opens here Saturday.

ALL FOR NOTHING.—Bobby Thomson of the New York Giants slid home for nought against the St. Louis Cardinals in this bit of action at the Polo Grounds. It was no score and no out because an attempted bunt by Sal Yvars (7) went foul. The Cardinal catcher is Del Rice, and the disinterested umpire is Jocko Conlon. Bobby had to go back to third. (NEA)

Sports Roundup—

Even From the Kids the Umps Take Undeserved Beatings

NEW YORK — A fellow we know says he attended a kid baseball game the other day and left in disgust after a few innings because the little beggars were spending more time beefing at the umpires and generally making themselves obnoxious than they were in playing ball.

"It's a pain," he said. "They've seen the big leaguers jawing with the umps so much that they think it's part of the game. The managers were getting in on the act, too, and the crowd was egging the kids on. I don't see how they get anybody to umpire any more."

"Why don't you," he urged, "do what you can toward telling these silly saps that the big league umpires you know are just people like anybody else; that they are sensitive, intelligent men who have a real love for the game, and that they are out there doing their best on a mighty hard job?"

The man's remarks are, of course, well taken. The umpire-bating phase of the game is becoming extremely irksome, and, though we had intended all along to stay away from kiddies' games, he supplies us with added incentive to do so. It is bad enough to watch the grown-ups.

As he says, big league umpires are as solid a group of citizens as you would want to know. They are good companions off the ball field, and when one of them decides you are on the level he is a far more interesting conversationalist than the average player. If they were not bound by the nature of their jobs to keep quiet in company, they would be better understood by the fans.

As they are only human, umpires come to detest certain players who make a practice of riding them. When they talk of these players

Chiefs Practicing For B-J Playoffs

Sedalia's Chiefs in the B-J League are putting on their final touches in practice for the playoff in the championship which opens Tuesday night, Aug. 26, in Sedalia.

It will be a best three of five series with the location to alternate each night between the cities of the first and second half pennant winners. Site of the fifth game, if required, will be determined by the flip of a coin.

The Sedalia Chiefs, of which Cal Rodgers is sponsor, won the first half pennant with eight victories in ten games.

Moberly, with seven triumphs in eight games, leads the second half race, though Mexico, Sedalia and Columbia are still in the running.

Country Club Beats Elm Hills Golfers

Sedalia Country Club golfers rang up their second consecutive victory over Elm Hills swingers Sunday afternoon at the country club course. The score on the second encounter was 47-13.

This gives the Country Clubbers a two-meet advantage of 79 1/2-28 1/2 as the score of the first divot battle was 32 1/2-15 1/2. The first match was played at Elm Hills.

Forrest Benner of the Country Club was the medalist with an 18-hole score of 76.

Dusk was settling over the Sedalia Country Club's green acres when the familiar "unknown," Ira D. Gruber, a fine hitting, calm young man from Pottstown, Pa., disposed of Maxwell on the 21st hole.

Earlier in the day, Urzetta, whose 39-hole victory over Frank Stranahan at Minneapolis in 1950 was the longest overtime match in the tournament's history, fell before Marion (Sonny) Hiskey, 21-year-old player from Twin Falls, Idaho.

Gruber, a mere 18 years of age, and a sophomore at Duke, sank an eight foot putt for a birdie three on the 21st to win. Maxwell had missed his putt from 15 feet out.

Hiskey, a member of North Texas State College's national collegiate team champions this year, and Idaho and Utah champion, ended Urzetta's hopes with a chip shot dead to the pin for a birdie four on the 18th green.

Maxwell's defeat carried on a jinx like string for the champions dating back to 1935. No champion has retained his title since California's great Lawson Little made it two in a row that year.

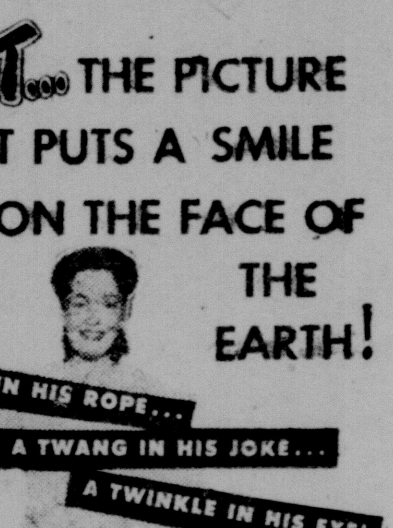

Today, in contrast to Monday's organized confusion, 64 matches were on the schedule.

Leo Durocher Suspended For 5 Days

By JOE REICHLER AP Sports Writer

Time keeps running out and trouble keeps piling up on the harried, injury-riddled and undermanned New York Giants.

Trailing the runaway Brooklyn Dodgers by a fat 7 1/2-game margin, the defending National League champions no sooner arrived in Chicago Monday for their final Western swing of the year when they were handed another severe jolt.

A telegram from League President Warren Giles advised Leo Durocher that he had been suspended for five days for his run-in with umpire Augie Donatelli last Sunday. A $100 fine also was plastered on the stormy manager of the Giants. The suspension begins Tuesday and lasts through Aug. 23.

Durocher, recognized as one of the best managers in baseball, generally was credited with doing a magnificent job last season in leading the Giants to their first flag in 14 years. For bringing the team up from a 13 1/2-game deficit as late as Aug. 11, he earned the Manager-of-the-Year Award in the Associated Press poll.

There were many who believed Durocher was doing an even better job of managing this year in keeping the Giants in second place despite such crippling blows as the ankle fracture suffered by Monte Irvin, the loss of Willie Mays to the service, the back ailment of Sal Maglie and the slumping of Bobby Thomson of 1951 playoff fame.

The Yankees took advantage of Cleveland's idleness Monday picking up a half game by defeating the Red Sox 4-2 in Boston. Vic Raschi hurled a five-hitter for his 14th triumph against three losses. Dizzy Trout was the loser, the victim of two-run outbursts in the first and third innings.

In the day's only other action, the Cubs came from behind with a three-run ninth inning rally to nip the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-3. Manager Phil Niekro, in relief, was credited with his third win against one loss.

Musial & Fain Wrapping Up Batting Crowns

NEW YORK — Batting champions Ferris Fain of the Philadelphia Athletics and Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals are teaming up to perform a feat no previous pair has been able to accomplish in 38 years.

Not since 1914 when Ty Cobb of Detroit annexed his eighth consecutive hitting title and Jake Daubert, the old Brooklyn first baseman, captured his second in a row, have both batting kings retained their crowns the following year.

Fain, who led the American League in 1951 with a .344 average, tops the loop with .333, seven points better than New York's Gene Woodling in second place with .326. Figures include Monday's games.

Musial, seeking his third straight batting crown, is the National League pace-setter with a .326 mark. The slender outfielder, a .355 hitter last season, holds an 11-point edge over runnerup Ted Kluszewski of the Reds, whose average is .315.

Since the first conveyor belts were put in operation in underground coal mines in 1929 more than 1,000 miles of belting have been installed.

Middlecoff Wins K.C. Golf With Sub-par Playoff

KANSAS CITY — Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist, followed the playoff route to the $15,000 Kansas City Open golf title for the second consecutive time yesterday.

He shot a 6-under-par 66 — the best round of the tournament — to beat Jack Burke Jr. of Houston, Tex., by six strokes. The two wound up the regulation 72 holes Sunday with 276 total.

Last year Middlecoff also finished in a tie at the end of 72 holes. In a three-way playoff, he took the title by edging Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., and Dave Douglas of Newark, Del.

Middlecoff is playoff conscious. Only last week he lost a playoff to Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N. C., in the $25,000 "World" Golf Tournament at Chicago.

For yesterday's victory he pocketed $2,400 plus a share of the day's gate receipts paid by a crowd of 2,000. Burke's 72 brought him $1,800 in second-place prize money. He also shared in the gate receipts.

Middlecoff's accurate putting was a big factor in the match played over the 6,200-yard Millburn Country Club Course. He had 29 putts to 36 for Burke. He 1-putted four of the first five holes.

The Tennessee toured the first nine in a 4-under-par 32 and didn't go over par on any of the 18 holes.

School Runs In Reverse

MORGANTON, N. C. (P)—Here in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains the Jonas Ridge School has just ended its "summer" vacation and started the new term.

There are two reasons why they turn the clock around. The hazardous winter weather makes mountain traveling difficult for the children. The winter vacation also gives them a chance to make some money by picking galax, a wild plant whose big, tough leaves are used for Christmas decorations.

The school begins its work soon after spring starts, and closes when winter arrives. The 125 students and four teachers hold classes in a modern, stone building.

VD Rate Reduced

HEIDLEBERG, Germany (P)—Venereal disease, once the U. S. Army's biggest headache in Germany, has been reduced to an almost "inconsequential" problem, Army authorities say.

The rate of infection has dropped steadily until it is only 20 per cent of the 1946 rate.

The steady improvement has been maintained despite the influx of young inexperienced soldiers since the re-introduction of the draft.

British Plight May Be Churchill's Last Stand

English People Want No More, of 'Fighting On the Beaches'

CHURCHILL'S LAST BEACH?

The old fighter who led England to victory in her greatest peril is not the hero now he was in war. He's the first of two dispatches in the dramatic story of what may well be Churchill's last stand. It's an on-the-spot report of a nation that ate the meat of 53,000 horses last year—and now finds itself eating crow.

By CHARLES R. HARGROVE
NEA Special Correspondent

LONDON—"We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills, we shall never surrender."

That classic of defiance Winston Churchill threw at the triumphant German armies June 4, 1940, just after they had overrun Western Europe, forced the English out of Dunkirk, and were poised for what looked like an invasion of the island, faltering England itself.

That was 12 years and a world war ago. Since then England surely has suffered and continues to suffer almost as much as if she had been forced to fight the Germans on her beaches and in her streets.

The other day the same Winston Churchill, again prime minister, still tough and doughty at times, but now 77 years old, made a characteristic battling speech about the perils besetting England from within and without.

To which a middle-class woman shopper replied: "So he's after fighting on the beaches' again. Well, we don't want any more of that." And comment in his own party as well as the Labor Party was hardly more flattering.

Some think this may well be Churchill's last beach.

The point here is one that will come as a shock to many Americans—the old fighter who led Britain to military victory in the greatest peril she ever faced is no longer the peacetime hero he was in war.

Britain is burdened by many ills at the moment and if Churchill has not caused them, which of course he hasn't, he and his Conservative government have done little to alleviate them in the less than a year they have been in power.

One simple fact is that Churchill is getting old and he shows he is forced to rest more and work less, he can't concentrate for long periods the way he used to. Londoners don't see the familiar hunched figure on the streets much anymore.

He was never long on economics and during World War II could dodge their tedium in the interest of getting the military job done, never mind the cost. But money and goods—or rather, the lack of them—are England's great problem today and many feel for this reason Churchill is not the man for the job.

There is even pressure now, both from elements of his own Conservative Party as well as from the Laborites, that he either retire or turn over some of the important reins of government to younger men.

But what to do with an old hero is by no means the most serious of England's problems. There are several, and they are involved, but probably the most important is figuring out how to keep from going, literally, bankrupt.

In a desperate effort to make ends meet, Britain has increased her exports to other countries by 74 per cent over the pre-war level. At the same time her imports are only about 26 per cent higher.

Her plight becomes further apparent when it is realized that, with 550 people per square mile as compared with 50 in the United States, Britain grows no cotton, rubber, or jute, produces no oil, imports nearly all its copper, four-fifths of its wool and softwoods, and half its food and iron ore.

And the experts say that with the one exception of coal, Britain has little hope of producing more food or raw materials.

World War II cost England about one-quarter of its total wealth. To pay her way in the early days of World War II, before lend-lease, she was forced to liquidate her saleable overseas assets including $4 billion in American securities. But the then mighty Churchill, at his best in war, was there to lead them and his spirit raised the spirits of the people.

Translated into simple terms, Britain's situation amounts to this: before the war the rest of the world owed every man, woman and child in Britain 100 pounds. Today it's almost vice versa—every person in England owes the world nearly 100 pounds.

British currency became erratic a few years ago and had to be put in a straightjacket, more and more of what Britain produced had to be sold for export to pay the bills, and as a result the standard of living at home became poorer and poorer.

The British pound before the war was worth $4.89. Ten years later it was worth $4.03. One year later it was $3.68, and the following year $2.80. There was talk recently of reducing it still further to about $2.50 or less.

An index by Churchill's own Conservative government shows the cost of living rose six per cent in the first nine months of its current administration. Wages rose, too, but not enough to stem a tide of workers' demands for more money.

And still higher prices are in sight. The government has announced it will cut its subsidies of certain foods by about one-half and cut down on the supplies of foods it does not subsidize. That means higher prices to the consumer.

Automobile manufacturers soon will deliver to the home market only one car where they delivered two before. And it's to be much the same for bicycles, radios, washing machines, and similar items.

There will probably be even less tobacco available to Britishers. They import it—a large amount from this country—and they're cutting down on imports generally.

Controls of all kinds are many and varied. They cover the prices of all essential goods and their distribution, especially raw materials.

They cover imports and exports of both goods and money, and even the movements of the British people. For no one can take more than 25 British pounds a year out of the country for any except strictly business purposes. You can't travel far on that.

The controls cover even the distribution of profits by companies—they are allowed to pay only moderate dividends.

All this is tough for all but the lower income groups. And even Churchillian rhetoric can't make it less so.

La Monte's Girl Scout Puppets Win 1st Place

The La Monte Girl Scout Troop, which was the only troop outside of the Girl Scout Councils represented at the Missouri State Fair, won a first award on the puppet show they built. They made all the puppets and operate them for benefit performances in La Monte. The fairy tale, "The Frog Prince," is the subject.

Mrs. D. Kelly Scruton is superintendent of the Girl Scout show. Representing the Girl Scout Council is Mrs. G. G. Hopkins, who acts as hostess.

Daily, movies made at the Girl Scout Day Camp, Sakajewa, Sedalia, are shown.

C. W. Flower Dry Goods Company, Sedalia, the only store handling Girl Scout equipment in Pettis County, has donated a Girl Scout sweater to the display.

In front of the building is an outdoor camp scene, showing the correct way to lay wood for a camp fire. A covered wagon sits in back of this.

Siren Heralds 'Hot' Drink

DENVER (P)—A new eatery opened recently in Denver and only now are the neighbors becoming accustomed to the sound of sirens screaming in the night.

The cause of the disturbance is "The Flaming Thing"—the liquid piece de resistance. Owner A. E. Pilkington decided a fitting ceremony should accompany delivery of "The Thing." Since flames dance four and five inches above the concoction, plastic fire helmets were ordered for each customer.

Now, a siren has been added. It sounds off when one of the specials is sold. Since Pilkington claims sales run about 200 an evening, the siren screams most of the night.

"The Flaming Thing" is built on a base of gin or bourbon with added liquors. A grapefruit slice is placed across the top, sprinkled with sugar and 151 proof rum.

Reds Execute 'Witch'
HONG KONG (P)—The Chinese Communists apparently have executed the Witch of Chaoan.

For many years Madam Lin made a grubby living through her bargain basement links with the "other world."

But the Reds found Madam Lin tough competition. Apparently the peasants listened to the Marxist gobbledygook and then to the Madam's fuzzy incantations and decided that Madam Lin made more sense.

But, whatever the cause, the Reds arrested her and after a public trial she was executed according to the Hong Kong independent newspapers.
